Practice notes

Use fictional details. Write before the example, practice aloud, and retry one specific part after feedback. During a live session, submit through your own login; this printable worksheet is a backup and does not submit for you. Unfinished work remains available when the presenter advances.

“None of them felt right.”

None of them felt right. What do you say next?

- Defend the second home.
- Ask what was missing.
- Book another tour without changing the search.

Choose one, then explain your own response.

Write your next question.

Practice the first question after a showing

Let the buyer answer before asking the next question.

What did the buyer actually say in your practice conversation?

After hearing that answer, what changes in your plan? Name the specific next step.

What did you improve in your targeted retry after feedback?

Observe the assigned learner and round:

- Accepts the buyer's reaction
- Asks a relevant follow-up
- Learns a specific preference
- Uses the answer to change the plan

Observer / learner / round / one correction / retry:

What makes a showing uncomfortable?

Start with the buyer's experience.

What would you do differently?

Give the buyer useful comparisons

Choose homes for a reason.

What would each home help this buyer compare?

Let the buyer have their own preferences

Your taste may be different from theirs.

- Explain why your taste is better.
- Ask what they like about it and listen.
- Assume it makes the home wrong for them.

Choose one, then explain your own response.

Use a rating to start a conversation

The reason matters more than the number.

What did you learn that should change the next search?

Ask what is behind the timing

A date is more useful when you understand why it matters.

Write a question that invites the buyer to explain their timing.

Work backward from a real deadline

Confirm the steps with the people responsible for them.

Write the next appointment and what it is for.

Practice a conversation about timing

Ask what makes the date important.

Choose a response. Write your next question.

Run the conversation after a showing

Agent, buyer, observer. Rotate after each round.

What specific correction will you retry?

What changed in your retry?

Observe the assigned learner and round:

- Accepts the buyer's reaction
- Asks a relevant follow-up
- Learns a specific preference
- Uses the answer to change the plan
- Clarifies financing preparation and the reason for timing in context
- Agrees on a useful next action, date, and owner

Observer / learner / round / one correction / retry:

Write the follow-up record

Use the practice buyer you just worked with.

Write the true stage, a factual note, and a dated task.

What would you ask without the slides?

Recall the questions before checking the guide.

List the questions you would use after a showing.

Before your next client conversation

Write down when you will practice again.

Buyer practice cards

Jordan • ready to offer

"The second house is a nine. I would like to offer, but I have not sent my lender the documents."

Learn why it is a nine. Clarify preparation and agree on a useful next step.

Morgan • fixed deadline

"The layout was good, but neither had the outdoor space I need. My lease ends November 30."

Learn the missing criteria and whether the date has flexibility. Agree on the next search and appointment.

Alex • flexible timing

"Nothing felt quite right. I said six months, but I am not working toward a deadline."

Accept the answer. Learn what was missing and agree on a follow-up the buyer finds useful.

What each signal means

Connection status is separate from participation. A submitted answer is separate from a completed action. A record check is separate from writing quality. Record who observed a speaking turn and who reviewed it; a peer observation or self-check is not coach sign-off. Practice readiness, quiz certification, and activation remain separate.

After the workshop

Live session: closing the session creates assignments for recall within 24 hours, a fresh case in three days, and coach review in seven days. The session creator owns follow-up across the selected teams unless a different authorized coach was selected. Confirm the displayed session timezone. Due and overdue work appears in Rep; the daily digest links to work due or awaiting review.

Self-paced study: arrange those same checks with a coach. If there has been no relevant client opportunity, use a new fictional case and mark real-work application as not yet observed.

Keep the first attempt and correction. A useful follow-up asks whether the agent can apply the skill in another case.
