

Prepare for the showing and help the buyer decide

78 minutes including practice · 33 screens

Edition 2026-09-16-day3-quadrants-v3

Before you begin

Eric opens Rep, selects the training and existing agents across teams, confirms the timezone, and creates the session. The creator is the default presenter and follow-up coach. Keep the presenter console on your screen and share the separate presentation window from the same browser. Click an answer on your presenter slide to highlight it in both windows. Ask for the reasoning, then click Submit answer to share the explanation. Open Presenter notes in the toolbar for the current slide; those notes stay private. People without HQ can answer aloud and explain their choice; this discussion selection does not create an individual submission.

Ask each selected agent to open the session through their own existing login. No second invitation is needed. Confirm that everyone can join and see the current activity. Submit written work before showing the model. Give one correction, then ask for a targeted retry. Advance to the question. Agents answer and submit on that slide, and their answers appear automatically beside your slide. Review actual arrivals before revealing the example. If someone needs more time, pause or return to the slide.

In self-paced study, notes remain in the learner's browser until they choose to share them. In a live session, the presenter sees submitted answers and progress; unsubmitted writing stays private. Preserve first attempts; a retry after an example is assisted.

For remote practice, use the meeting platform's breakout rooms. Assign pairs or trios and rotate agent, buyer, and observer. In pairs, the buyer gives feedback. Every agent needs a speaking turn, one correction, and a retry. If a partner is absent, assign a coach or leave the observation outstanding.

Rehearse without agents

Create a new test session for this day without selecting agents. Open the test learner in a second tab. Advance to a vote, submit a choice, and review it in the presenter console. Reveal the example and check that it reaches the learner. Repeat with a short answer. At a breakout, choose Assign speaking turns, speak a turn, save a presenter observation, and check the feedback in the learner tab. These responses are saved only as test evidence; ending the test creates no agent assignments. Existing sessions keep their original curriculum; create a new session for this edition.

What each signal means

Connection status is separate from participation. A submitted answer is separate from a completed action. A record check is separate from writing quality. Record who observed a speaking turn and who reviewed it; a peer observation or self-check is not coach sign-off. Practice readiness, quiz certification, and activation remain separate.

Facilitator flow

01 / 33 · 0-1 min · Welcome

Prepare for a successful showing

Today we are going to work on the first showing. Success is not whether they buy the house we open. Success is whether we understand them better and they leave knowing how we will help them move forward. Introduce yourself and connect today to the first-call work in Day 2. Sources: INT-005-007; Eric's Day 3 objective. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: What you will learn and practice. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Help the buyer understand what works, what does not, and what to do next.

Spoken handoff: Next: What you will learn and practice. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

02 / 33 · 1-2 min · Welcome

What you will learn and practice

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Prepare before you arrive. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- 01Prepare before you arriveResearch the homes and build a tour that serves this buyer.
- 02Conduct the showingWelcome honest reactions and learn what the home needs to do for the buyer.
- 03Lead the post-tour conversationAsk about an offer, then follow the buyer's answer.
- 04Understand concerns and agree on a planConnect useful help to the buyer's reason and follow through.

Spoken handoff: Next: Prepare before you arrive. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

03 / 33 · 2-2 min · 1. Prepare before you arrive

Prepare before you arrive

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: What should be ready before tomorrow's showing?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

01

Discuss your approach

Learn the steps

Put it into practice

Spoken handoff: Next: What should be ready before tomorrow's showing?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

What should be ready before tomorrow's showing?

Present the situation without giving the answer. Allow a quiet first response, then hear two different approaches. Recognize sound reasoning and identify gaps before moving to the teaching slides. This discussion is ungraded. Sources: Eric's September 16 teaching format; existing TRU curriculum. Handoff: Next: Review the property information before the showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- What would you research about each home?
- How many homes would you propose, and why?
- What would you ask the listing agent and confirm with the buyer?

Spoken handoff: Next: Review the property information before the showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: You are meeting a buyer tomorrow. They want a quiet office and a usable yard. They have an afternoon available for the tour.

- What would you do, and why? What information would change your answer?

Reveal after the first response:

Prepare two to four relevant homes when the buyer's time, preferences and access allow. Review available property information and comparisons, call the listing agent, explain tradeoffs, confirm access and bring a useful packet. The number supports a thoughtful tour; it does not override the buyer's needs.

Coach-led discussion. No automatic grade. Ask learners to explain their reasoning and what information would change their recommendation.

Review the property information before the showing

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Call the listing agent with specific questions. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Read the available documents

Review the listing and seller disclosures. Identify facts that affect the buyer's stated needs and flag missing information.

Prepare useful comparisons

Review three relevant comparable sales where available. Note the differences that make each comparison useful rather than assuming the prices are directly interchangeable.

Check practical details

Review property taxes and school district information. Record the source and any question that needs confirmation. Explain the information without guessing.

Spoken handoff: Next: Call the listing agent with specific questions. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Call the listing agent with specific questions

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Choose two to four homes for a useful comparison. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Ask about the listing

"Is there an offer deadline or offer activity we should know about?" Ask about seller timing and any rent-back request.

Ask about unresolved facts

"The available materials do not state the roof age. Is there documentation you can share?" Keep reported information separate from verified documents.

Confirm access

Check appointment approval and showing instructions. A buyer's preferred time does not establish access. If an answer is pending, record it and plan the update.

Spoken handoff: Next: Choose two to four homes for a useful comparison. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Choose two to four homes for a useful comparison

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Bring information the buyer can use during the tour. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Explain why each home belongs

"This home has the enclosed office you wanted. The yard is smaller. Would comparing the layout still be useful?"

Respect firm requirements

If the yard is nonnegotiable, revise the options. More homes are useful only when the comparisons help the buyer decide.

Confirm the tour plan

Agree on the meeting place, sequence and timing. Review access instructions and the applicable brokerage-approved agreement before the visit.

Spoken handoff: Next: Bring information the buyer can use during the tour. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Bring information the buyer can use during the tour

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Use a real MLS sheet to prepare for the showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

For each home

Include the MLS sheet and useful comparable sales. Add relevant neighborhood information with its source.

For the conversation

Mark the property facts tied to the buyer's needs and keep unresolved questions visible. Use the packet to support an explanation rather than read every field aloud.

Before you leave

Recheck appointment confirmations, showing instructions and the meeting plan. Bring a physical packet as in the preparation example.

Spoken handoff: Next: Use a real MLS sheet to prepare for the showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Use a real MLS sheet to prepare for the showing

Show the original MLS excerpt, then open the linked full sheet if useful. It is a real historical report, not a fictional listing or an available tour option. The red annotation is present in the county source. Read status and report date first; distinguish reported property facts from unanswered questions. Source: Yamhill County B.O. 25-413, PDF page 94, Exhibit A-4 page 13; report dated March 24, 2025. Accessed September 16, 2026. Handoff: Next: Practice preparing tomorrow's tour. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Client FullResidential3/24/202512:29PM

$1,205,0003 bd | 3 / 1 ba | 2446 sqft

Status: Sold

List Date: 8/10/2023

DOM: 132Acres: 0.51MLS#: 23022380

Year Built: 2017 / RESALE

2075 SW SAILING CT McMinnville, OR 97128

Unit #:Condo Loc:

XST/Dir: Baker Creek, Hill Rd, West Wind, Fox Swale, Cottonwood, Sailing

Original report excerpt; source markup retained. Open the full sheet in Yamhill County's public document · PDF page 94 ■

Check status and date first

This sheet is marked Sold and dated March 24, 2025. Use it to study the format, not as a currently available home.

Connect the facts to the search

The sheet lists 2,446 square feet and 0.51 acres. Use the actual fields to compare properties; size alone does not show whether the layout fits the buyer.

Identify what still needs an answer

A year built is not a roof-replacement date. Record the buyer's unanswered property questions and seek supporting information before the tour.

Spoken handoff: Next: Practice preparing tomorrow's tour. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

10 / 33 · 20-24 min · 1. Prepare before you arrive

Practice preparing tomorrow's tour

Present the situation without giving the answer. Allow a quiet first response, then hear two different approaches. Recognize sound reasoning and identify gaps before moving to the teaching slides. This discussion is ungraded. Sources: Eric's September 16 teaching format; existing TRU curriculum. Handoff: Next: Conduct the showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- Choose two to four homes and explain why each belongs on this buyer's tour.
- Name the information you would research and the questions you would ask the listing agents.
- Explain what you would confirm with the buyer and bring to the appointment.

Spoken handoff: Next: Conduct the showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: Use the same buyer: a quiet office, a usable yard and one afternoon to see homes. Before we move to the showing, put the preparation together.

- What would you do, and why? What information would change your answer?

Reveal after the first response:

A complete plan connects each home to the buyer's needs, identifies missing property information, confirms access and timing, and includes useful documents. Explain any tradeoff before the visit. Adjust the selection when a firm requirement is not met.

Coach-led discussion. No automatic grade. Ask learners to explain their reasoning and what information would change their recommendation.

11 / 33 · 24-24 min · 2. Conduct the showing

Conduct the showing

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: How would you respond when buyers react differently?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

02

Discuss your approach

Learn the steps

Put it into practice

Spoken handoff: Next: How would you respond when buyers react differently?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

12 / 33 · 24-27 min · 2. Conduct the showing

How would you respond when buyers react differently?

Present the situation without giving the answer. Allow a quiet first response, then hear two different approaches. Recognize sound reasoning and identify gaps before moving to the teaching slides. This discussion is ungraded. Sources: Eric's September 16 teaching format; existing TRU curriculum. Handoff: Next: Make it safe to dislike the home. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- What would you say first?
- What do you need to understand before suggesting a solution?

Spoken handoff: Next: Make it safe to dislike the home. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: During the first tour, one buyer loves the open living area. Their partner says, "I could never work from home here."

- What would you do, and why? What information would change your answer?

Reveal after the first response:

Invite each buyer to explain how they would use the home. Learn what work calls require before suggesting a room change. Make honest reactions welcome and avoid choosing a priority on their behalf.

Coach-led discussion. No automatic grade. Ask learners to explain their reasoning and what information would change their recommendation.

13 / 33 · 27-29 min · 2. Conduct the showing

Make it safe to dislike the home

Demonstrate this as a normal welcome, not a memorized speech. Explain that the goal is to help them find the right fit, whether this home works or the search takes longer. Follow through: if they criticize the kitchen, get curious instead of defending it. Invite someone to describe what an agent could do later that would contradict this welcome. Sources: Repository SALES_DOCTRINE: Drop the rope; R021; INT-038-039. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Let them experience the home. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

"I'm excited to show you around. You do not have to make this home work. Tell me what you like and what you would change. That helps us figure out what to look for next."

Spoken handoff: Next: Let them experience the home. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

14 / 33 · 29-31 min · 2. Conduct the showing

Let them experience the home

Demonstrate a short silence while the buyer looks around, then a question based on something they actually said. Do not read a facial expression as a conclusion. Being quiet is not disappearing: be available and answer useful questions. Preserve the existing showing teaching about giving space. Tie factual uncertainty to Eric's problem-solving rule: prepare a useful next step, not a guessed answer. Sources: Existing Day 3 showing conduct; R002; R025. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Let the buyer's reaction lead to one useful question. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Give them room

Let the buyer look and talk. You do not need to narrate every room.

Follow their reaction

“You paused in the office. What were you picturing using it for?”

Separate fact from guess

If a property question is unresolved, say so and explain how you will seek the answer.

Spoken handoff: Next: Let the buyer’s reaction lead to one useful question. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

15 / 33 · 31-33 min · 2. Conduct the showing

Let the buyer’s reaction lead to one useful question

Give agents this as a working question bank, not a checklist. Model asking one question, listening, and building the next question from the answer. “A bigger house” becomes useful when we learn why the current space fails. A summary is a check with the buyer, not an agent deciding their priorities for them. Sources: R005; R021; INT-005-007,038. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric’s process. Handoff: Next: Ask what each buyer needs from the home. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

“This office could work.”

Let them look around and finish their thought.

“What would work better here than in your current setup?”

Ask one question tied to what they just said. Then listen.

“I could close the door during calls.”

Now you know why the room matters. Check your understanding before changing the search.

“So having a quiet room you can close off is what matters most. Have I understood that?”

Spoken handoff: Next: Ask what each buyer needs from the home. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

16 / 33 · 33-35 min · 2. Conduct the showing

Ask what each buyer needs from the home

Ask agents to choose, then explain what each answer would help them learn and what it could miss. After reveal, invite two volunteers to play the buyers. Give them one sentence each about a workday and have an agent ask a responsive follow-up. Do not turn this into settling a disagreement for the couple. Sources: R005; R021; derived practice case. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric’s process. Handoff: Next: Lead the post-tour conversation. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Spoken handoff: Next: Lead the post-tour conversation. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: During a first tour, one buyer loves the open living area. Their partner says, “I could never work from home here.” What would you do first, and why?

- Explore whether the dining area could become a workspace.
- Ask each buyer how they would use the home during a normal day.
- Suggest making an enclosed office a required search filter.
- Explain your choice. What would you need to hear from each buyer?

After submission: Ask each buyer how they would use the home during a normal day. B gives both people room to explain. Learn what “work from home” requires before proposing a physical fix or changing the search. A might become useful after verification and buyer interest; C might fit after both buyers agree on the priority.

Reveal after the first response:

B gives both people room to explain. Learn what “work from home” requires before proposing a physical fix or changing the search. A might become useful after verification and buyer interest; C might fit after both buyers agree on the priority.

17 / 33 · 35-35 min · 3. Lead the post-tour conversation

Lead the post-tour conversation

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric’s September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: What would you ask before the buyer leaves?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

03

Discuss your approach

Learn the steps

Put it into practice

Spoken handoff: Next: What would you ask before the buyer leaves?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

18 / 33 · 35-38 min · 3. Lead the post-tour conversation

What would you ask before the buyer leaves?

Present the situation without giving the answer. Allow a quiet first response, then hear two different approaches. Recognize sound reasoning and identify gaps before moving to the teaching slides. This discussion is ungraded. Sources: Eric’s September 16 teaching format; existing TRU curriculum. Handoff: Next: Ask for a few minutes before they leave the house. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- How would you ask for a few minutes?
- What would your first question be?
- What changes if they say yes, no or unsure?

Spoken handoff: Next: Ask for a few minutes before they leave the house. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: The tour has finished. The buyer has mentioned things they liked and things that did not work.

- What would you do, and why? What information would change your answer?

Reveal after the first response:

Ask for a few minutes and explain the purpose. Start with “Did we see any homes we want to write an offer on?” Then follow the answer. Do not infer a decision from silence, criticism or a rating.

Coach-led discussion. No automatic grade. Ask learners to explain their reasoning and what information would change their recommendation.

19 / 33 · 38-40 min · 3. Lead the post-tour conversation

Ask for a few minutes before they leave the house

This adapts Eric's opening in INT-005. He asks for time and explains the purpose before asking questions. Then ask the required offer question on the next slide. Follow their answer without assuming a negative reaction. If they are rushed, agree on another useful time rather than force a parking-lot consultation. Demonstrate a calm transition from the tour to this conversation. Sources: R005; INT-005. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Start by asking about an offer. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

“Thanks for being honest about the house. Do you have a couple of minutes? I'd like to understand what worked and what didn't so we can make the next step useful for you.”

Spoken handoff: Next: Start by asking about an offer. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

20 / 33 · 40-42 min · 3. Lead the post-tour conversation

Start by asking about an offer

Begin the post-tour conversation with Eric's required first question, exactly: “Did we see any homes we want to write an offer on?” Ask it every time; do not replace it with a rating or assume they disliked the homes. Pause and listen. If yes, clarify which home and discuss what they need to move into the offer conversation. If no or unsure, use a relevant follow-up from this slide. These are options, not a checklist to ask in order. Ask what stood out positively as well as what did not fit. When using a one-to-ten rating, ask why and what would make it a better fit; a high rating alone is not permission to write an offer. Invite a volunteer to answer the opening question and demonstrate choosing a follow-up from their answer. End by agreeing on a useful next step. Sources: Eric's September 16 correction; R002; R005; INT-005-006. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Let the offer answer guide your next question. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Then follow their answer. Choose a question that helps you understand their reaction:

What stood out?

“What did you like most about the homes we saw? What did not work for you?”

How would you rate them?

“On a scale of one to ten, how would you rate each home? What makes it that number?”

What would help next?

“Which home came closest to what you want? What would you need to know or see next?”

Spoken handoff: Next: Let the offer answer guide your next question. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Let the offer answer guide your next question

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Understand concerns and agree on a plan. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

If they say yes

Clarify which home and what they need to move into the offer conversation. Interest does not resolve unanswered property or financing questions.

If they say no

Ask what worked and what did not. "Which home came closest? What was missing?" Use the answer to refine the next search.

If they are unsure

Ask what would help them decide. Identify the missing information or concern and agree how to address it. A high rating alone is not permission to write.

Spoken handoff: Next: Understand concerns and agree on a plan. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Understand concerns and agree on a plan

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Next: Reasons buyers may hesitate after a showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

04

Discuss your approach

Learn the steps

Put it into practice

Spoken handoff: Next: Reasons buyers may hesitate after a showing. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Reasons buyers may hesitate after a showing

Read a few examples and ask what else agents have heard. Keep this as one overview, not six objection scripts. Some statements describe a real need or a firm constraint. Six months might be a lease, a work decision, preparation they need, or simply an estimate. We do not know until we ask. The objective is to build a plan for when it is right for this buyer, not convince them to buy today. Sources: Eric's current correction; R006, R020, R024; INT-045-050. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: What would you ask to understand the buyer?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- “We would rather keep renting.”
- “We are about six months out.”
- “I am unsure about interest rates.”
- “I do not know what payment we can afford.”
- “We may need to relocate for work.”
- “We need to sell our current home first.”

Spoken handoff: Next: What would you ask to understand the buyer?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

24 / 33 · 45-48 min · 4. Understand concerns and agree on a plan

What would you ask to understand the buyer?

Let the room choose which concern to explore rather than assigning a rebuttal to each one. Give thirty seconds to write an acknowledgment and question. Invite someone to play the buyer and answer it. Ask another agent to propose help based on that answer. Then change the buyer’s reason and ask how the plan changes. For six months, contrast a firm work-related constraint with an estimate based on uncertainty about payment. Ask: What can we help them prepare now? What should wait? For rates, learn what the uncertainty means before offering lender input. The test is whether the recommendation serves the buyer’s actual need, not whether they agree to buy sooner. Sources: Eric’s current correction; R006, R020, R024; INT-045-050. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric’s process. Handoff: Next: Understand the concern before proposing a solution. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

- “We would rather keep renting.”
- “We are about six months out.”
- “I am unsure about interest rates.”

Spoken handoff: Next: Understand the concern before proposing a solution. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: Choose a statement from the list below. Explain what you would ask, what you might learn, and how that would change the plan.

- Which statement did you choose? Write your acknowledgment and first question.
- Give two possible buyer answers. What preparation or next step would fit each answer?

Reveal after the first response:

Start by understanding the reason. A firm six-month constraint calls for a preparation plan around that date; an uncertain payment may call for an agreed lender conversation to explore options. Neither answer means the buyer must purchase now. Explain why your suggested help matters, ask whether it would be useful, and agree on actions and the next contact.

Coach-led discussion. No automatic grade. Ask learners to explain their reasoning and what information would change their recommendation.

Understand the concern before proposing a solution

Demonstrate the sequence in plain English. Acknowledge their concern without immediately agreeing with an assumption or trying to defeat it. Ask a question, listen, and follow their answer. A lender can help clarify financing questions, but an introduction is useful only when connected to the buyer's need and accepted by them. Respect an existing lender relationship. If a six-month timeframe is firm, ask what needs to happen and build preparation around it. If it is an estimate, understand what would make the timing clearer. Never treat a long timeline as proof they are unserious. Helpful guidance can end in an informed decision to wait. Sources: Eric's current correction; R001-006, R020, R024; INT-003-007,035-036,045-050. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Connect the next step to the buyer's goal. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Acknowledge the concern

Recognize what matters to them: "I understand wanting to feel prepared before taking that step."

Ask questions to understand

"What is driving that timing?" · "What would you need to know?" · "How important is moving before your lease ends?"

Offer help and agree on a plan

Connect help to their answer. That may mean lender input, research, a home-sale plan, or preparing over the next six months.

Spoken handoff: Next: Connect the next step to the buyer's goal. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Connect the next step to the buyer's goal

First demonstrate the question that earns this recommendation: How important is moving before your lease ends, and what part of the payment concerns you? The goal and timing must come from the buyer. The usual time to introduce financing is when they raise it or at the end of the first showing. Ask about an existing lender before offering someone you work with. Do not promise a lower rate, approval, savings, or a particular product. A lender conversation gathers information; it is not an agreement to buy. If they accept, agree on who makes the introduction and a specific next contact that works for them. If they are not ready, ask what preparation would help over their actual timeframe. Sources: Eric's current lender example; R001-005, R020, R024. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Update the buyer when a property answer is still pending. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

"You said moving before your lease ends matters to you. Would it help to talk with a lender about the payment and options? We may learn something neither of us knew to consider. If you would like an introduction, I can arrange it, and we can reconnect afterward to decide what makes sense for you."

Spoken handoff: Next: Update the buyer when a property answer is still pending. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Update the buyer when a property answer is still pending

Ask for a choice and the information that could change it. Discuss the difference between “I may want to offer” and “I need this now to decide on an offer.” Ask: What can you commit to when you cannot control the listing agent? What should the buyer hear by five? Have an agent speak the update. Reveal the example after the room has worked through the tradeoff. Sources: R025; INT-051. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric’s process. Handoff: Next: Can the buyer explain the plan back to you?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Spoken handoff: Next: Can the buyer explain the plan back to you?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: After a showing, a buyer says they may want to make an offer, but need the roof age first. You promised an update by 5. It is 4:45, and the listing agent has not replied. What would you do next?

- Propose talking tomorrow morning so the listing agent has more time.
- Update the buyer, clarify the decision timing, and get team-lead help if the answer is urgent.
- Arrange an offer conversation for 5 and work around the missing roof information.
- Explain your choice. What changes if the buyer needs the answer immediately to decide on an offer?

After submission: Update the buyer, clarify the decision timing, and get team-lead help if the answer is urgent. B fits the uncertainty. Keep the buyer informed before five, clarify how the answer affects their decision, and seek team-lead advice if it is urgent. Propose a next update you control. Do not guarantee a third-party answer. A may become appropriate after agreement and understanding urgency; C assumes enough information to set an offer plan.

Reveal after the first response:

B fits the uncertainty. Keep the buyer informed before five, clarify how the answer affects their decision, and seek team-lead advice if it is urgent. Propose a next update you control. Do not guarantee a third-party answer. A may become appropriate after agreement and understanding urgency; C assumes enough information to set an offer plan.

Can the buyer explain the plan back to you?

Compare “I will send you listings” with “I will send two options with enclosed offices tonight; we will talk Wednesday at six about whether either is worth touring.” The exact plan depends on the buyer. For someone waiting, agree on what information would help and how to stay in touch. Ask them to confirm or adjust the plan. Respect a decision not to continue. Do not manufacture a date just to fill a field. Sources: R020-021; R024; INT-035-039,050. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric’s process. Handoff: Next: Save what changed and what you promised. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Why this step?

What did we learn today, and what question or need does this address?

Who does what?

What will you do? What has the buyer agreed to do? What remains unresolved?

When do we reconnect?

Agree on a time or a clear trigger and a useful way to communicate.

Spoken handoff: Next: Save what changed and what you promised. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

29 / 33 · 56-57 min · 4. Understand concerns and agree on a plan

Save what changed and what you promised

Connect this to Day 1 without reteaching the whole record. An honest comparison update can be useful even when no home matches perfectly. Explain why it is relevant and honor the communication preference. A task is a reminder; completing it is not evidence that the buyer accepted a new plan. Next we practice the whole conversation and then write the record from what was actually said. Sources: R021; R025; existing Day 1 stage definitions. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Practice the showing and agree on a plan. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Factual note

Record what worked, what did not, the reason for timing, and the agreed plan. Keep unknowns unknown.

Correct stage

Use Met with customer after the first appointment; Showing homes after the second.

Follow-through

Use a dated FUB task to support the agreed action. Deliver the update even if an outside answer is still pending.

Spoken handoff: Next: Practice the showing and agree on a plan. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

30 / 33 · 57-73 min · 4. Understand concerns and agree on a plan

Practice the showing and agree on a plan

Use rotating trios with agent, buyer, and observer, or pairs where the buyer gives feedback. In pairs, both take an agent turn and use the third round to retry the harder moment. In each turn briefly welcome the buyer, then move to the end of the fictional tour and build a plan from the card. Buyer: supply the card facts naturally when asked, and do not agree automatically. Observer: name one actual moment and one correction. Do not label a peer or self-check as coach sign-off. Submit the buyer answer and plan after the conversation, not before the buyer has spoken. If testing solo, set up solo speaking practice and record test observations. A solo run cannot verify a live peer's performance. Sources: R005-006; R020-025; INT-005-007,035-039,048-051. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Would your next contact move the plan forward?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Set up · 1 minute

Choose the assigned buyer card. Use the meeting platform for breakout rooms.

Three rounds · 4 minutes each

Agent: welcome and discovery for 2 minutes. Observer: one specific correction for 1 minute. Agent: retry for 1 minute. Rotate roles.

Debrief · 3 minutes

What answer changed your plan? What did your partner improve on the retry?

Spoken handoff: Next: Would your next contact move the plan forward?. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: Work in pairs or trios. Everyone takes an agent turn and responds to what the buyer actually says.

- What did your buyer actually say that changed your approach?
- What plan did you agree on: purpose, actions, and next contact?
- What did you improve after the observer's feedback?

Observer criteria:

- Makes honest feedback welcome
- Uses the buyer's answer in a relevant follow-up
- Connects help to the buyer's actual concern
- Checks agreement on actions and next contact

Reveal after the first response:

Look for a welcome that invites honest reactions, a follow-up that uses the buyer's answer, and a specific agreed plan. Feedback names an observed moment; the retry improves that moment. A decision to wait can be sound when the plan fits the reason.

31 / 33 · 73-75 min · 4. Understand concerns and agree on a plan

Would your next contact move the plan forward?

Give a minute to write and submit. Read two contrasting plans with permission. Ask the room what each next contact will accomplish. Correct invented facts, missing agreement, or a generic "checking in." Have the agent revise that part. This is a written practice record, not a change to a real FUB contact. Review the real submitted answers in the presenter panel. Sources: R021; INT-037-039. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Your next showing should end with a plan. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Partner check: Is the plan based on what the buyer said? Can someone tell who does what and when?

Spoken handoff: Next: Your next showing should end with a plan. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Participant task: Use the buyer conversation you just practiced. Write the note and next task you would save, then explain the purpose of your next contact.

- Write the factual note, correct stage, and next task. Include the reason for the next contact.

Reveal after the first response:

The note reflects the conversation, separates unknowns from facts, and records the agreed action. The stage matches the completed appointment. The task supports a useful next contact at the agreed time or trigger.

32 / 33 · 75-77 min · Review and reference

Your next showing should end with a plan

Ask two agents to name a behavior they will use at their next showing and why. Remind them that helping the buyer can include a better search, a lender conversation, getting an answer, or a thoughtful plan to wait. The worksheet has the question bank and practice cards. End the live session when ready; normal sessions create follow-up practice, while solo rehearsals create no real-agent assignments. Day 4 can build on the financing questions that surfaced today. Sources: Eric's Day 3 objective; R005; R020-025. Buyer examples are fictional teaching scenarios adapted from Eric's process. Handoff: Next: Use this training after the session. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

Conduct the showing

Prepare useful comparisons and make honest reactions welcome.

Understand the buyer

Follow their answers into priorities, concerns, and timing.

Build momentum

Recommend a useful next step, confirm the plan, and follow through.

Spoken handoff: Next: Use this training after the session. Connect it to the action you just practiced.

33 / 33 · 77-78 min · Review and reference

Use this training after the session

Use the visible explanation as the teaching reference. Ask what the agent would do, hear the reason, then demonstrate the steps. Fictional examples illustrate the existing TRU process. Sources: existing day curriculum; Eric's September 16 quadrant and independent-review requirements. Handoff: Return to the relevant quadrant when you need the steps, then practice again.

Find the topic

Use the four sections to return to the action you need. Read the example and the reason for the next step.

Practice again

Answer the scenario before opening its explanation. For a conversation exercise, use the buyer card with a partner, get one specific correction, and retry.

Keep a reference

Download the agent reference for the teaching and examples. Keep practice notes separate from real customer records.

Spoken handoff: Return to the relevant quadrant when you need the steps, then practice again.

Buyer practice cards

Case 1 · The home does not fit

"We liked the living area, but I could hear everything from the office. We are still figuring out what matters."

Buyer facts: one buyer takes work calls at home; a quiet enclosed office matters more than an extra bedroom. They want to compare two quieter layouts next Saturday if access works. Reveal the reason when asked. Agent: learn what "quiet" requires and agree on a search and confirmation plan; do not promise access.

Case 2 · The timing has a reason

"We like the home, but we keep saying a year. I do not know what payment we would be comfortable with."

Buyer facts: a year is an estimate, not a fixed deadline. They have not spoken to a lender and want information before deciding whether buying fits. They are open to an introduction, not committed to buying. Agent: clarify the concern, offer relevant preparation, and agree how to reconnect without accelerating their decision.

Case 3 · An answer is holding up the decision

"This one could work, but the roof worries me. I need to understand that before deciding whether to take the next step."

Buyer facts: the roof age is unknown. They would like to consider an offer soon if they can understand the issue, but have not decided to offer. They can talk again at six. Agent: establish what information matters and how urgent it is, seek appropriate help, and agree on an update without promising the outside answer.

After the workshop

Live session: closing the session creates assignments for recall within 24 hours, a fresh case in three days, and coach review in seven days. The session creator owns follow-up across the selected teams unless a different authorized coach was selected. Confirm the displayed session timezone. Due and overdue work appears in Rep; the daily digest links to work due or awaiting review.

Self-paced study: arrange those same checks with a coach. If there has been no relevant client opportunity, use a new fictional case and mark real-work application as not yet observed.

Keep the first attempt and correction. A useful follow-up asks whether the agent can apply the skill in another case.

References and certification

Updated September 16, 2026 from the existing Day 3 workshop and Eric's approved interactive-training plan. TRU sales doctrine remains the source for coaching the first call and follow-up.

- Zillow touring agreement - confirm the brokerage-approved form and local requirements.

Existing quizzes, pass thresholds, and certification records continue through the normal Rep course flow. The presentation link is not a certification attempt.