

Winning the first conversation

90 minutes including practice · 28 screens

Edition 2026-09-14-aims-live-v4

Before you begin

Eric opens Rep, selects the training and existing agents across teams, confirms the timezone, and creates the session. The creator is the default presenter and follow-up coach. Keep the private presenter console on your screen and share the separate presentation window.

Ask each selected agent to open the session through their own existing login. No second invitation is needed. Confirm that everyone can join and see the current activity. Submit written work before showing the model. Give one correction, then ask for a targeted retry. Advance to the question. Agents answer and submit on that slide, and their answers appear automatically beside your slide. Review actual arrivals before revealing the example. If someone needs more time, pause or return to the slide.

In self-paced study, notes remain in the learner's browser until they choose to share them. In a live session, the presenter sees submitted answers and progress; unsubmitted writing stays private. Preserve first attempts; a retry after an example is assisted.

For remote practice, use the meeting platform's breakout rooms. Assign pairs or trios and rotate agent, buyer, and observer. In pairs, the buyer gives feedback. Every agent needs a speaking turn, one correction, and a retry. If a partner is absent, assign a coach or leave the observation outstanding.

Rehearse without agents

Create a new Day 2 test session without selecting agents. Open the test learner in a second tab. Advance to a vote, submit a choice, and review it in the presenter console. Reveal the example and check that it reaches the learner. Repeat with a short answer. At a breakout, choose Assign speaking turns, speak a turn, save a presenter observation, and check the feedback in the learner tab. These responses are saved only as test evidence; ending the test creates no agent assignments. Existing sessions keep their original curriculum; create a new session for this edition.

What each signal means

Connection status is separate from participation. A submitted answer is separate from a completed action. A record check is separate from writing quality. Record who observed a speaking turn and who reviewed it; a peer observation or self-check is not coach sign-off. Practice readiness, quiz certification, and activation remain separate.

Facilitator flow

01 / 28 · 0-1 min · Welcome

The first conversation

Welcome the group. Connect to Day 1: they learned where work belongs in FUB. Today they will learn what to say and do when the lead arrives. Introduce yourself and explain that the examples use fictional buyers. Handoff: Yesterday we worked inside the record. Today we'll work through the conversation that gives that record meaning. Sources: Eric's September 14 Day 2 objective. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

We'll work from the lead alert through the first call and the next step you agree together.

Spoken handoff: Yesterday we worked inside the record. Today we'll work through the conversation that gives that record meaning.

02 / 28 · 1-3 min · Welcome

The route through today's session

Explain the 90-minute plan and two speaking practices. Ask everyone to open their learner session now. Explain that the first vote is also a connection check: pause there until actual responses arrive. Do not claim attendance alone proves submission works. Handoff: Let's start where the agent starts: the request that just arrived. Sources: September 14 objective. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

- Receipt and first responseRead the request, choose the contact method, then submit a vote and a text.
- The first conversationWatch the opening and discovery. Practice a follow-up with a partner.
- Questions, closing, and a full callHandle a buyer's question, agree the plan, then rotate through a complete call.

You answer on the current slide in your own session. Submit, then we'll discuss. The presenter advances everyone together.

Spoken handoff: Let's start where the agent starts: the request that just arrived.

03 / 28 · 3-7 min · Know the lead

The request tells you how to begin

Explain each route through the decision it changes. Real-time touring does not arrive as a live call in Eric's documented flow. Read actual timeframe and representation answers when supplied; a form question is not the buyer's answer. Demonstrate: "I saw Saturday morning. I'll check access and confirm with you." Handoff: Before we contact Jordan, let's check that distinction between a requested time and confirmed access. Sources: INT-012; documented TRU operating flow. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Lead route	What you receive	What to check
Connection / contact agent	A question about a home, live or by FUB alert	The question and contact preference
Real-time touring	A tour alert using ShowingTime availability	The selected time and current arrangements

Lead route	What you receive	What to check
Standard tour	A tour request, live or by FUB alert	Whether the requested time is available

Jordan's is a standard tour request. Saturday morning is the buyer's preference. Property access still needs checking.

Spoken handoff: Before we contact Jordan, let's check that distinction between a requested time and confirmed access.

04 / 28 · 7-10 min · Know the lead

Your turn: requested or confirmed?

Allow 45 seconds for the vote. Verify submissions reach your presenter view. Ask one agent why they chose their answer. Reveal the explanation and emphasize that acknowledging a preference does not promise access. If answers do not arrive, resolve the join/submission problem before continuing. Handoff: We know what needs checking. Now we need to decide how to reach the buyer. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Acknowledge 5 p.m., check access, and tell the buyer when you will confirm. Their request gives you a starting point; it does not prove the seller approved it.

Use the requested time while keeping an unverified arrangement separate from a confirmed appointment.

Spoken handoff: We know what needs checking. Now we need to decide how to reach the buyer.

Participant task: Another standard tour lead asks for 5 p.m. Access is unconfirmed. What do you do?

- Confirm 5 p.m. now and check access afterward.
- Acknowledge 5 p.m. and verify property access.
- Ask for a new time before checking the requested one.

After submission: Acknowledge 5 p.m. and verify property access. Use the requested time while keeping an unverified arrangement separate from a confirmed appointment.

Reveal after the first response:

Acknowledge 5 p.m., check access, and tell the buyer when you will confirm. Their request gives you a starting point; it does not prove the seller approved it.

05 / 28 · 10-13 min · Make contact

How will you contact the buyer?

Point to Jordan's alert example and choose the default call. Explain why: a conversation lets the agent hear the buyer and respond to their answers. Distinguish the automated introduction from the agent's own call. Do not invent an after-hours deadline. Handoff: Let's try that call. First, what happens if Jordan doesn't pick up? Sources: R008-R010; INT-009-INT-013, INT-054. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Already on a live call

Introduce yourself and begin.

FUB alert, no preference

Call within five minutes of receipt during TRU's 8 a.m.-8 p.m. operating window.

A specific instruction

Use the requested channel or callback time. Acknowledge a later callback by text now.

Spoken handoff: Let's try that call. First, what happens if Jordan doesn't pick up?

06 / 28 · 13-16 min · Make contact

Jordan does not answer

Read the text aloud. Explain the recognizable property, reason for calling, and genuine times offered. Mention an opening voicemail when appropriate. Automation is separate from personal effort. These are normal-flow targets, not an invented late-day schedule, and a stated contact restriction governs. Handoff: That was the default with no preference. Now change one fact: the buyer has told us when to call. Sources: R009, R019. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Hi Jordan, this is Sam with Northside Realty. I just called about your request to see 1234 Lane Saturday morning. I can talk at 4 or 6 today. Does either work?

While unanswered

Day one: aim for 3-4 personal touches, including at least 2 calls and 1 text. First week: 10 total including day one, mostly calls.

When Jordan replies

Continue from the reply and agree a plan. The unanswered-lead quota stops.

Spoken handoff: That was the default with no preference. Now change one fact: the buyer has told us when to call.

07 / 28 · 16-18 min · Make contact

A requested callback changes the response

Make the contrast explicit: Jordan gave no contact instruction; Maya did. Read the acknowledgment. The five-minute default does not justify ignoring her requested time. Offering an earlier call is optional and must reflect real availability. Text-first now is different from a permanent no-call instruction. Handoff: You've heard an acknowledgment. Write your own version for Maya. Sources: R008, R010; INT-013, INT-043. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Hi Maya, I'm Sam with Northside Realty. I'll be calling at five about your request. Let me know if you have a question before then.

Text first for now

Help by text now. Offer a later call if useful.

An explicit no-call request

Honor it. Continue through the agreed channel.

Spoken handoff: You've heard an acknowledgment. Write your own version for Maya.

Your turn: acknowledge Maya

Give 60 seconds to write and submit. Read two responses, noticing whether each introduces the agent and preserves five o'clock. Reveal the example. Do not turn a difference in wording into an error if the meaning is accurate. Handoff: Now return to Jordan. The call connects. What should the conversation accomplish? Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Hi Maya, I'm Sam with Northside Realty. I'll be calling at five about your inquiry. If you have a question before then, let me know. I'm also free earlier if that would help.

Introduce yourself promptly, keep the requested call time, and offer earlier availability only if it is real. Do not call immediately just to satisfy the normal five-minute default.

Spoken handoff: Now return to Jordan. The call connects. What should the conversation accomplish?

Participant task: Maya's alert arrives at 2 p.m. and asks for a 5 p.m. call. Write your acknowledgment.

- What would you text Maya now?

Reveal after the first response:

Hi Maya, I'm Sam with Northside Realty. I'll be calling at five about your inquiry. If you have a question before then, let me know. I'm also free earlier if that would help.

Jordan answers. Where does the call go?

Give the whole route before demonstrating pieces. Explain that the appointment invitation comes early because the buyer asked for help with a home. ALMS should help the agent listen, not become a list to recite. Handoff: Here is the first part aloud: an introduction that leads directly into Jordan's request. Sources: R012-R013; INT-015-INT-016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

A

Appointment

Help with the requested visit.

L

Location

Learn where they want to be.

M

Motivation

Learn why it matters.

S

Summarize

Agree what happens next.

Location and motivation can come in either order. The buyer's answers guide the next question.

Spoken handoff: Here is the first part aloud: an introduction that leads directly into Jordan's request.

10 / 28 · 23-26 min · Guide the call

The opening answers "Who is this?"

Read both sides. Pause after the introduction to identify name, brokerage, Zillow connection, and purpose. Then demonstrate the early invitation. On a live transfer, say Zillow connected you about the request. Use the real affiliation and available times. Never borrow an invented expertise claim. Handoff: Now try the same opening skill with one change: no tour time was selected. Sources: R013; INT-016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent "Hi Jordan, I'm Sam with Northside Realty, a featured partner with Zillow. I'm calling about your request to see 1234 Lane."

Agent "I saw Saturday morning. I'll check access for that time. Would morning still work for you?"

Jordan "Yes, morning works."

No time selected? Offer two times you can actually make. Property access still needs confirmation.

Spoken handoff: Now try the same opening skill with one change: no tour time was selected.

11 / 28 · 26-30 min · Guide the call

Your turn: no time was selected

Give 90 seconds to choose and write. Discuss one opening that connects naturally to the inquiry. The invitation should precede a qualification interview, while preserving uncertain access. Reveal the example after responses. Say explicitly that this was a variation; the main example returns to Saturday morning next. Handoff: Back in our main call, Jordan prefers Saturday morning. We have a starting plan, but we still know very little about Jordan. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Hi Jordan, I'm Sam with Northside Realty, a featured partner with Zillow. I'm calling about your request to see 1234 Lane. Would Saturday morning or afternoon work better? I'll verify access for the time we choose.

Orient the buyer and offer useful times before discovery. Use actual availability. The invitation is a strong default, not a reason to ignore a buyer's stated circumstances.

Spoken handoff: Back in our main call, Jordan prefers Saturday morning. We have a starting plan, but we still know very little about Jordan.

Participant task: Practice variation: Jordan asked to see 1234 Lane but selected no time. How would you begin?

- Ask about budget and preapproval before offering a time.
- Explain the buying process before discussing the visit.
- Introduce yourself and offer workable showing times.

- Write your introduction and early appointment invitation.

After submission: Introduce yourself and offer workable showing times. Orient the buyer and offer useful times before discovery. Use actual availability. The invitation is a strong default, not a reason to ignore a buyer's stated circumstances.

Reveal after the first response:

Hi Jordan, I'm Sam with Northside Realty, a featured partner with Zillow. I'm calling about your request to see 1234 Lane. Would Saturday morning or afternoon work better? I'll verify access for the time we choose.

12 / 28 · 30-33 min · Ask and listen

The appointment opens a conversation

Read the exchange. Ask aloud what the follow-up learned that "in town" alone did not tell us. Connect this to location: use their current situation and ask which areas work for them and why. Do not assume a lease end, children, or a reason for moving. Handoff: Jordan mentioned outdoor space. That gives us the next question. Sources: R013; INT-016, INT-023. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent "Do you have a few minutes so I can learn what you're looking for and make our time together useful?"

Jordan "Sure. We're already in town."

Agent "What's changing where you live now?"

Jordan "We rent an apartment. We'd like outdoor space."

If they have only a minute, keep it brief. Handle the request and agreed next action without forcing a full interview.

Spoken handoff: Jordan mentioned outdoor space. That gives us the next question.

13 / 28 · 33-36 min · Ask and listen

"Outdoor space" needs a follow-up

Read each turn and point to the link between the answer and the next question. Briefly contrast "Great, how many bedrooms?" which abandons the answer. Use authentic warmth without a memorized personal anecdote. Ask the room what they now know they did not know before. Handoff: You've heard a follow-up reveal the reason. Practice finding the reason with a partner. Sources: R013; INT-016, INT-021. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent "What would you like to do with that space?"

Jordan "I'd like a vegetable garden."

Agent "What would you need from the space for that?"

Jordan "Somewhere sunny, with room for raised beds."

Now the search has a reason: usable garden space. A large yard alone may not solve it.

Spoken handoff: You've heard a follow-up reveal the reason. Practice finding the reason with a partner.

Partner practice: what does “more space” mean?

8 minutes: 1 minute setup, 3 minutes each direction (2-minute conversation and 1-minute correction/retry), 1-minute debrief. Assign speaking turns and open the meeting platform's rooms. Buyer invents a simple reason and reveals it when asked. Listen for permission and a question connected to the actual answer. On return, ask one pair what changed on the retry. Handoff: You have a way to learn what matters. Before we close the call, let's handle questions that can interrupt that plan. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

- First turn: 3 minutes Ask permission, follow the buyer's answer, then use one correction to retry.
- Switch buyer and agent: 3 minutes Use a new reason for needing more space. Everyone gets a speaking turn.
- Room debrief: 1 minute Share the follow-up that taught you something useful.

1 minute to set up. Video rooms are in your meeting platform. Submit your reflection after practice.

“What is feeling too tight in your current place?” Their answer could reveal the purpose of the space. Follow that answer rather than assuming a larger bedroom count solves it.

Choose a question connected to the buyer's words. There is no required question count, personal anecdote, or fixed order for location and motivation.

Spoken handoff: You have a way to learn what matters. Before we close the call, let's handle questions that can interrupt that plan.

Participant task: Practice variation: your buyer says, “We need more space.” Learn what that means, then switch roles.

- What would you ask next, and what would that help you understand?
- What did your partner suggest, and how did your retry change?

Observer criteria:

- Ask permission before discovery
- Ask a follow-up based on the buyer's actual answer

Reveal after the first response:

“What is feeling too tight in your current place?” Their answer could reveal the purpose of the space. Follow that answer rather than assuming a larger bedroom count solves it.

What if the buyer only wants an answer?

Make clear this is an alternate buyer response, not a new fact about Jordan. Demonstrate a useful second invitation: “Seeing it could help you decide whether it fits, and I can bring the roof answer. Would that be useful?” If declined, stop pushing and arrange the answer. Answer known facts now. Do not make information conditional on meeting. Handoff: A property question can reveal a concern. The same applies when the buyer asks about financing. Sources: R014; INT-016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent “Of course. What would you like to know?”

Buyer “How old is the roof?”

Agent “I’ll check that. Can I ask what concerns you about it?”

Buyer “I’m worried about taking on repairs.”

Bring the answer back. Explain how a viewing could help them decide. If they still decline, agree how to return the information.

Spoken handoff: A property question can reveal a concern. The same applies when the buyer asks about financing.

16 / 28 · 46-48 min · When the call changes

When the buyer asks about a lender

Read the example. The buyer introduced financing, so address it. Explain that lender-specific numbers belong with the lender. Eric’s usual later opening is the end of the first showing; today covers the buyer-raised first-call question only. Do not lecture on loan products. Handoff: Choose the response that helps with that concern while keeping the meeting easy. Sources: R001-R004; INT-001-INT-005, INT-016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent “A lender can help you understand your options. What are you hoping to work out before we look?”

Buyer “I don’t know what payment I’d be comfortable with.”

Agent “That’s useful to work through. I can help connect you with a lender to discuss those numbers.”

Help with the concern. Do not turn the showing request into a demand for preapproval.

Spoken handoff: Choose the response that helps with that concern while keeping the meeting easy.

17 / 28 · 48-51 min · When the call changes

Your turn: a financing question

Allow a short vote, then ask someone to say the answer in everyday language. Reveal and discuss why both refusing the topic and imposing a blanket preapproval gate miss the buyer’s question. Handoff: Another question may be about who you represent. Keep that answer just as direct. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

“A lender can help you understand your options. What are you hoping to work out before we look?” If they need help with payments or financing options, offer a lender connection.

Buyer-initiated financing questions deserve an answer. Avoid both a blanket refusal to discuss money and a blanket requirement to obtain preapproval before receiving help.

Spoken handoff: Another question may be about who you represent. Keep that answer just as direct.

Participant task: The buyer asks, “Should I talk to a lender before we look?” What is the best response?

- Ask what they need to work out, then offer relevant lender help.
- Save the financing question for the showing and move on.
- Ask for a preapproval letter before scheduling the showing.

After submission: Ask what they need to work out, then offer relevant lender help. Buyer-initiated financing questions deserve an answer. Avoid both a blanket refusal to discuss money and a blanket requirement to obtain preapproval before receiving help.

Reveal after the first response:

“A lender can help you understand your options. What are you hoping to work out before we look?” If they need help with payments or financing options, offer a lender connection.

18 / 28 · 51-53 min · When the call changes

“Are you the listing agent?”

Read the short answer and return to the property question. Use the real role. If an existing representation agreement raises an unresolved question, involve the team lead using the actual circumstances and form. Avoid an agency lecture. Handoff: Your role is clear. Now suppose the answer about the property itself is disappointing. Sources: R015; INT-016-INT-018. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

I’m not the listing agent. I help buyers and can coordinate with the listing side. What would you like to know?

If they prefer the listing agent, offer to help with that connection. Respect their choice.

Spoken handoff: Your role is clear. Now suppose the answer about the property itself is disappointing.

19 / 28 · 53-55 min · When the call changes

The home is under contract

Apply Eric’s problem-solving principle only to this first-call scenario. We are not teaching a cancellation or showing-day workflow. Explain why the next step uses the buyer’s reason. Do not claim to have researched alternatives when you have not. Handoff: Try giving that news with a specific next step tied to what the buyer told you. Sources: R011-R012 applied to the initial availability question. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent “The home is under contract. I can check whether a viewing is still possible. What drew you to it?”

Buyer “The yard. I want room for a garden.”

Agent “I can also research homes with useful garden space. Would that help?”

State what you know. Keep access and unresearched alternatives conditional.

Spoken handoff: Try giving that news with a specific next step tied to what the buyer told you.

20 / 28 · 55-58 min · When the call changes

Your turn: an unavailable home

Give 60 seconds for writing. Compare one bare status update with one truthful plan tied to garden space. Reveal after responses. Listen for unsupported promises about access or already-researched alternatives. Handoff: Those were alternate situations. Return to Jordan’s original call: Saturday morning is preferred, garden space matters, and access is still pending. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

“The home is under contract. I can check whether a viewing is still possible. Since garden space matters, I can also research some options to compare. Would that be useful?” Keep access and unresearched alternatives conditional.

Tell the truth, use known priorities, keep possibilities conditional, and offer a next step. Do not merely hand the search back with “Want something else?”

Spoken handoff: Those were alternate situations. Return to Jordan’s original call: Saturday morning is preferred, garden space matters, and access is still pending.

Participant task: Variation: the home is under contract. The buyer wants garden space. What do you say next?

- Write your response and a useful next step.

Reveal after the first response:

"The home is under contract. I can check whether a viewing is still possible. Since garden space matters, I can also research some options to compare. Would that be useful?" Keep access and unresearched alternatives conditional.

21 / 28 · 58-61 min · Build the plan

The plan should use what Jordan told you

Demonstrate obtaining agreement before adding comparisons. Explain Eric's goal of two or three homes without making extra homes a condition. The summary reflects actual priorities, permission, pending checks, and the agreed channel. Briefly explain the applicable touring form and what you will send, using its actual terms. Do not invent signing status. Handoff: Now close that call in your own words, using only what Jordan has agreed to. Sources: R013; INT-016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Agent "Would it help to compare another home with usable garden space while we're out?"

Jordan "Yes, that would help."

Agent "Saturday morning is your preference. I'll check access to 1234 Lane and research a comparison with garden space. I'll text you the details after I hear back. Is that right?"

Jordan "Yes. Text is good."

Spoken handoff: Now close that call in your own words, using only what Jordan has agreed to.

22 / 28 · 61-64 min · Build the plan

Your turn: the agreed next step

Give 60 seconds to submit. Ask which parts are agreed and which remain pending. Reveal and discuss. A useful close can be brief; it must preserve the buyer's facts and the agent's actual commitment. Handoff: You've practiced the parts. Watch how those same parts connect in one uninterrupted call. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

"Garden space matters, and Saturday morning is your preference. I'll check access and research a comparison with room for a garden. I'll text you the details after I hear back. Have I missed anything?"

Do not upgrade a requested time into a confirmed showing. Reflect the actual priorities and your promised action.

Spoken handoff: You've practiced the parts. Watch how those same parts connect in one uninterrupted call.

Participant task: Jordan wants garden space, prefers Saturday morning, accepts a comparison home, and agrees to text. Access is pending.

- Write the summary and next step you would say aloud.

Reveal after the first response:

"Garden space matters, and Saturday morning is your preference. I'll check access and research a comparison with room for a garden. I'll text you the details after I hear back. Have I missed anything?"

The whole call: opening and discovery

Ask a volunteer to read Jordan or read both parts yourself. Do not stop to label every ALMS letter. Agents listen for what each answer gives the agent to work with. Continue directly to the next slide without opening a new discussion. Handoff: Jordan has just said “outdoor space.” Continue from those words. Sources: R013; adapted from INT-016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Sam “Hi Jordan, I’m Sam with Northside Realty, a featured partner with Zillow. I’m calling about 1234 Lane. I saw Saturday morning. Would that still work? I’ll check access.”

Jordan “Yes, morning works.”

Sam “Have you got a few minutes so I can make our time useful? What’s changing where you live now?”

Jordan “We rent in town. We’d like outdoor space.”

Spoken handoff: Jordan has just said “outdoor space.” Continue from those words.

The same call: discovery and agreement

Finish the demonstration aloud. Briefly explain the applicable touring form and promised follow-up in accurate terms. Ask what made the next step specific to Jordan. Then give practice instructions; do not introduce another topic. Handoff: Now run a call yourselves. Keep the sequence, but respond to the buyer you actually hear. Sources: R012-R013, R016. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Sam “What would you like to do with that space?”

Jordan “A vegetable garden. I need sun and room for raised beds.”

Sam “Would comparing another home with garden space help?”

Jordan “Yes.”

Sam “Saturday morning is your preference. I’ll check access and research that comparison, then text the details. Does that work?”

Jordan “Yes, text is good.”

Spoken handoff: Now run a call yourselves. Keep the sequence, but respond to the buyer you actually hear.

Group practice: the complete first call

15 minutes: 1 minute setup, three 4-minute rounds (3-minute call and 1-minute correction/retry), 2-minute debrief. Assign speaking turns, then use the meeting platform’s rooms. Buyer uses the assigned card and reveals the underlying reason in conversation. Observer gives one concrete correction. On return, ask which buyer answer changed the agent’s next question. A simulated or peer check is not coach sign-off. Handoff: The call is finished. Your next action should make good on the promise you just made. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

- Call: 3 minutes Use the buyer card. Introduce yourself, help with the request, follow answers, and agree a next step.
- Feedback and retry: 1 minute Observer names one moment. Agent replays that part.

- Rotate, then debrief Repeat until all three have spoken. Submit the reflection after your turn.

1 minute setup, three 4-minute rounds, 2-minute debrief. Your assigned roles appear in your session. Video rooms are in your meeting platform.

Introduce yourself, offer the appointment early, ask permission, explore location and motivation through follow-up questions, and summarize the actual plan. Adapt if Jordan has limited time or a different request.

Use a partner as the buyer. When studying alone, say the agent's turns aloud and compare with the two demonstration slides. A self-check is practice, not observed coach sign-off.

Spoken handoff: The call is finished. Your next action should make good on the promise you just made.

Participant task: Trios rotate through agent, buyer, and observer. Everyone speaks.

- What did you learn about the buyer?
- What will you improve?
- What changed when you tried it again?

Observer criteria:

- Clear name, brokerage, Zillow connection and purpose
- Useful early appointment invitation that respects the request
- Permission, relevant location/motivation questions and a follow-up
- Accurate priorities, commitments and unresolved checks
- Responds to the buyer's actual preference and circumstances

The record should match the call

Connect directly to the note and task skills from Day 1. Read the example record against the call. Ask which phrase prevents the next person reading the record from mistaking the request for confirmed access. Keep this to immediate follow-through, not later sales stages. Handoff: Before we finish, explain the decisions you would make on the next lead. Sources: R020-R021; INT-035-INT-039. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Conversation note

Rents locally. Wants sunny space for raised beds. Prefers Saturday morning. Open to a comparison home. Text agreed.

Pending action

Check access to 1234 Lane and research a useful comparison.

Task and next contact

Set a task for the promised work. Text the details after the access answer, as agreed.

Saturday morning remains requested until access is confirmed. Do not record a completed showing or an agreement the buyer did not make.

Spoken handoff: Before we finish, explain the decisions you would make on the next lead.

27 / 28 · 86-89 min · After the call

Your turn: explain the next lead

Give 90 seconds for the three short responses. Use the remaining time to address the most common uncertainty. This checks understanding, not certification or observed call performance. Sources: TRU Sales Process; application of the preceding instruction. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

ALMS: Appointment, Location, Motivation, Summarize. Introduce yourself first. Offer useful help early, honor stated contact preferences, and follow the buyer's answers instead of collecting a checklist.

If one part feels uncertain, return to that chapter and its examples. Ask your coach about the specific moment you want to practice.

Spoken handoff: Keep this reference beside you when the next lead arrives.

Participant task: Without looking back, explain the first-call decisions in your own words.

- What does ALMS stand for, and why does the appointment come early?
- What changes when the buyer asks for a later call or text first?
- Give one follow-up question that turns a feature into a reason.

Reveal after the first response:

ALMS: Appointment, Location, Motivation, Summarize. Introduce yourself first. Offer useful help early, honor stated contact preferences, and follow the buyer's answers instead of collecting a checklist.

Your first-call reference

Recap one idea from each part. Point agents to their reference and explain the next coaching check. End the session only after the final submissions are saved. Handoff: Your next call starts with the buyer's actual request. Use the reference, listen, and keep the promise you make. Sources: September 14 reference requirement; R008-R016, R019-R021. All buyers and property details in examples are fictional.

Before contact

Check the lead route, home, requested time, and contact preference.

When connected

Introduce yourself. Offer the appointment early. Ask permission, then follow the buyer's answers about location and motivation.

Before finishing

Summarize priorities, pending checks, and the agreed next action. Save the note and task.

Buyer practice cards

Jordan • a garden

I'd like to see 1234 Lane Saturday morning. The yard caught my eye.

Buyer: you rent locally and want sun and room for raised beds. Reveal those details after relevant questions. You are open to a comparison home. Access remains unconfirmed.

Maya • text first

I'm at work. Please text me now; I can talk at five.

Begin with the text exchange, then fast-forward to the agreed call. Buyer: a shorter commute matters; reveal it when asked. Honor the contact preference and agree the later conversation.

Alex • questions first

I only wanted to know about the roof. I'm not ready to book a showing.

Buyer: maintenance costs concern you. Reveal this after a relevant question. Decline the next invitation too. Agent should help with the question and agree how to return verified information.

After the workshop

Live session: closing the session creates assignments for recall within 24 hours, a fresh case in three days, and coach review in seven days. The session creator owns follow-up across the selected teams unless a different authorized coach was selected. Confirm the displayed session timezone. Due and overdue work appears in Rep; the daily digest links to work due or awaiting review.

Self-paced study: arrange those same checks with a coach. If there has been no relevant client opportunity, use a new fictional case and mark real-work application as not yet observed.

Keep the first attempt and correction. A useful follow-up asks whether the agent can apply the skill in another case.

References and certification

Updated September 14, 2026 from the existing Day 2 workshop and Eric's approved interactive-training plan. TRU sales doctrine remains the source for coaching the first call and follow-up.

Existing quizzes, pass thresholds, and certification records continue through the normal Rep course flow. The presentation link is not a certification attempt.
